

FAQs

Modified : Emily EJ Baillie on Dec 30 2020, 01:28 PM

- What about my benefits?
  - Those will all come from Infosys. The benefits are different but comparable to what we offer.
- Will Revature be able to breach me if I resign from Infosys?
  - After your first 30 days with Infosys, legal action will come from them. During your first 30 days, it can still come from Revature.
- Does InfoSys provide relocation reimbursement?
  - Revature provides relocation assistance for the onboarding associates on their first time relocation ($750). Candidates need to coordinate with their Infosys' reporting manager for their future relocation reimbursements as per Infosys' internal relocation policy.
- When should I submit my timesheet?
  - Submit your timesheet like normal, but note that if you onboard on a Thursday that you will submit that week's timesheet for Monday through Wednesday.
- When will I find out where my project is?
  - Infosys will handle that communication. It can vary.
- Can I remain in the Revature Slack/Connect workspace?
  - Please do! We love to remain in contact with our associates, even once they have been converted to full-time employees by our clients.
- Should I select "Yes" or "No" for the following question: Are you subject to any contractual restrictions including non-competition or other obligations that could prevent you from working for us in the role for which you have applied, including current and prior employer restrictive covenants?
  - Select No